

Academic Essay Structure Worksheet for Speaking

In well-written paragraphs or essays, students present information in a logical order. Notice how the three parts of a paragraph correspond to the three part of an essay.

In an essay introduction, the writer stimulates the reader's interest gives general or background information about the topic. Then the writer presents a thesis statement, usually at the end of the introductory paragraph. Like the topic sentence of a paragraph, the thesis statement of an essay names the specific topic and writer's controlling idea about it. Each paragraph of the body develops a subdivision of the topic. The conclusion, like concluding sentence(s) in a paragraph, can restate the topic and controlling idea, summarize or review the main points discussed in the body, and/or present a writer's final statement about the topic.

An essay has coherence(logical organization) and unity(a focus on one topic), just as a paragraph does. Transition signals link the paragraph into a cohesive whole.
