Lately in Korea, TV programs that give expert consultation to parents who are extremely strict, and children who refuse to obey are very popular. However I believe that parents should make important choices for children because parents will make the best choice for the children, and have the knowledge

 (Listen Carefully : _____)
_____)

Parents always think of what is most beneficial for their children all the time. Every parent in this whole world wants to protect their children's happiness. Therefore, the decisions that they make are always for the good of their children. On the other hand, when children make their own decisions, occasionally they don't choose what is best for them. This is specially true when the child is going through puberty. During this period, students are still immature so they tend to be very vulnerable to their surroundings. From time to time, we hear from the media about cases where students make wrong decisions because of the influence of their friends. Like this, parents need to make decisions for their children because they are easily distracted

Furthermore, adults have lived longer and learned a lot more than children. The experiences that they've gone through, and the knowledge they have will help them make more realistic decisions than their children. For example,

 (Listen Carefully : _____
_____)

The student will most likely desire to choose the major he is interested in. Nevertheless, in most cases, the name of the major and its curriculum are very different from what the school actually teaches once the students enter school. Because parents have experience with this already, they will be very helpful in guiding their children to make a more realistic decision. In other words,

 (Listen Carefully : _____
_____)

In conclusion, children might want to make independent decisions of their own, but it is much more beneficial for them to follow their parents decisions. Parents will make the best decision for them because they care for them,
