Unit 01 The Gift

UNIT 01

Miss Muriel hung a drawing of a soccer player on the wall a few days ago. No one knew who drew it. Was it that good? Jack thought the grass was too green. (a) ■ Last week, he accidentally submitted the wrong paper for his art homework. To his surprise, he discovered his doodle on the school wall later that afternoon. “Was it Jason?” Someone whispered right next to ★him. Jack almost blurted out the truth.

The following day, Jack went to the art room to talk to Miss Muriel. “The drawing is mine,” he admitted. “But nobody was supposed to see it.” “Were you embarrassed about it?” asked Miss Muriel. “No. It’s just that I want people to know me as an athlete,” replied Jack.

Miss Muriel pondered for a moment. (b) ■ Jack shook his head. “He was a famous Italian sculptor. But people knew him as a painter,” explained Miss Muriel as she showed Jack a picture. Was it a real woman? No, it was a radiant white statue of a woman! It was so lifelike that it seemed that a real person had turned to stone. (c) ■ “★He got angry when people thought it was another sculptor's work. So, he snuck in at night and carved his name," shared Miss Muriel. Jack understood Michelangelo on that. "So should I sign my name on the drawing at night?" asked Jack. Miss Muriel laughed. "That's up to you, Jack. I just think your art deserves some fame." (d)■
