Chapter 1

Pre-READING : Listen to the story and repeat it.

-  “Jack! I am asking you! How much did you sell the cow for? Show me the money!” said Jack’s mother as she interrupted her son. Jack hesitated for a moment and then continued, “The truth is... I sold the cow to an old man and received these beans instead,” said Jack.
-  “You received beans and not money? Why didn’t you go to the market to sell the cow? The old man tricked you and now we can’t buy a single egg! Go to the attic! You don’t have the right to even drink a cup of water,” said his mother in anger.
-  Jack’s mother was very angry. She threw the beans Jack had brought out of the window and made Jack sleep in the attic. Jack fell asleep crying and woke up the next morning to the sound of birds singing by the window. Jack got up and noticed that the room was as dark as midnight.
-  He went up to the window but fell down in shock. The beans his mother had thrown out of the window had grown overnight, and the plant reached high up in the sky.
